PREVIOUSLY...

Nate Willner, a chef in NYC, was forced to move back to his tiny hometown of Blackfossil, Utah, after his restaurant exploded, killing his sister and leaving him unmotivated and hollow. After months of living with his grandmother, Maribel, and working at the Javarado Café with childhood friend, Starlee, it looks like Nate's life has become a dead end. But when he unexpectedly inherits a time travel suit from his Great Uncle Tony, he is transported back to the era of the dinosaurs. In order to survive, Nate has to kill a Quetzalcoatlus in self-defense with the suit's blowtorch. The smell of the roasted beast makes Nate wonder what it tastes like. He eats some of the meat and discovers it's the greatest meal he's ever had. Nate drags the carcass back to his time and decides to open a restaurant in the present using ancient meat from the past!

Using his inheritance Nate purchases the Javarado and makes plans to open the restaurant with Starlee as his business partner. Meanwhile, Tony's death has started to take a mental toll on Maribel, who had some kind of secret relationship with him in the past. Nate, unaware of the connection, tries to figure out how to get his life on track and not get killed by dinosaurs. As he heads back home with his latest kill, a pack of vicious predators prepare to attack.
