GLX: The Harmony Restoration Movement was inspired by various movements that China went through in the 1800s and early 1900s. After suffering humiliating military losses at the hands of foreign powers, the Chinese tried to get their country back on track with different programs. The Self-Strengthening Movement is one example; the May Fourth Movement is another. At the beginning of The Promise, the Earth Kingdom is in a position similar to that of late 1800s China.

EARTH KING KUEI PLANNED A CELEBRATION WHERE HE WOULD ANNOUNCE THE HARMONY RESTORATION MOVEMENT. BEFORE THE FESTIVITIES BEGAN, HE DECIDED TO VISIT THE JASMINE DRAGON, A TEA SHOP OWNED BY ZUKO'S UNCLE IRON.

GLX: I loved how the original show referenced American coming-of-age milestones. "The Beach" features a high-school house party. In "Nightmares and Day-dreams," Aang suffers that familiar nightmare of being pantsless at your final exam. Aang's final confrontation with Ozai is his final exam, and Zuko's coronation is their graduation ceremony. So what happens on this page? Partying on grad night!

AANG

Because of other projects we had been working on at the time, we drew everyone's heads too big at first, especially Aang's. The characters ended up looking too childish, so we went back and fixed this. We worked especially hard on Aang, since it was so important that we get him right.

We sent several cover ideas for each part of "The Promise. It was very challenging to fit all five characters on each cover.

SOKKA

We really enjoyed drawing Sokka. We based his costume on the design of his father's costume, so that you could feel the bond between them.

We always think about how to draw the readers' eyes along the page when we do the layouts.
