HI
MARCY!

720 Days

Dear Diary,

It's time to panic.

This is the first day of my freshman year at Riverdale High School, which means there are approximately 720 days of school left until I graduate and have to go to college.

720 DAYS!!! That is like no time at all. And the worst thing about it is I have NO idea what I'm going to choose as my college major and time is running out to figure out what I want to be when I grow up.

This morning before I left for school, my mom seemed to notice that I looked a bit stressed.

She asked me if I was ok, and if I was nervous about starting high school today.

I admit I freaked out a bit.

NO!
I'm nervous about what I'm going to do for the rest of my life! Today is just the beginning of the end of my youth!

Of course, my mom totally failed to see the seriousness of my situation.

She handed me my lunch and practically shoved me out the door saying, "Don't be so dramatic. Here's your lunch. There's a pudding cup inside!"

A pudding cup? Doesn't she realize I'm too old for those now?!

Jughead was at the bus stop when I got there. He also happens to be my next door neighbor. He's kind of weird, but we get along. (He gets in trouble a lot for sneaking food in class.)

I asked him if he realized that there were only about 720 days left of school before we graduate.

He also failed to see the seriousness of my situation.

When I got to school, I was able to forget about the 720 days thing for a bit because the place is so GINORMOUS!

I was pretty much instantly lost.

After wandering around for a while, I decided I would just have to ask someone for directions. Yes, I know it's lame, but not as lame as showing up late to homeroom on your first day! (Plus, the earlier you are, the more likely you are to get a good seat!)
