There once was a gosling named Chauncey.
Noble and proud was he.

Feather of pearl,

His father an Earl,

He came from a rich family.

When gosling became gander,
Young Chauncey chose to meander.
He left a home so dear,
For a forest near,
In search of ways to make his family richer.

He traveled through plains and swamps of Ooo,
When he tired of walking
he flew.

He made new friends,

Crashed in their dens,

And soon enough,
Chauncey knew--
