We're about to leave the Red Farm, kids. Hope you enjoyed Mars.

Meet my sister, the White Queen of Hellfire Trading. She will continue our walking tour of the solar system.

Thank you, Christian.

Good morning, young mutants. You are all radiant in this starlight.

Here on Mars, we grow some of the flowers that become the medicines we are using to transform Earth.

The humans get longer, better lives...

...and we get peace.

On your right you will see some of the automatons that Forge has built using little more than what grows on Krakoa.

Who knows what mutantdom really makes here?

Ooh! I know! Medicine for flatscans!

Not a nice term, but yes: Krakoa's offering is processed back here on Earth for human consumption.

However, mutantdom creates something much more valuable here...

...this is where we make leverage, children.

As you become young adults, we hope you will use your mutant gifts to make sure Krakoa maintains it.

This way.

Who wants to visit Magneto's secret island? Then to the Savage Land!

yay!

yay!

yay!

yay!

yay!

Emma Frost. Can you hear me?

Yes, Bishop. Go ahead.

One moment, children.

I've tried mentally shouting for other telepaths, but I'm too far out of range. I'm surprised you're the one who heard me.

I believe it's because the Cuckoos are...acting like an antenna. Right now the girls are across the globe.

If you can, you should remote view through my eyes... and I apologize in advance.

I'm on a salvage ship above a wreck just a couple of hours outside Madripoor.

I need backup now.

Oh no. Please.

You seeing this?

I can hear your heart racing in my ears.

I'm sorry.

No need to say nuthin'.
I'll watch out for her now.

You get the cavalry
here.
