Welcome to the All-New X-Factor, Serval Industries' newest way of making your life better—a privately owned and operated super-team handpicked by Serval CEO Harrison Snow to serve the needs of both Serval Industries and the society and people that make up the world we all share. Why should super-teams like the Avengers be the purview of government, bogged down as it is with bureaucracy and politics? X-Factor has the backing and resources of a successful corporation, proven efficient in the free market and unmatched in its charitable works and contributions.

Before: The X-Factor team has been sent to the Old City, located in the Middle East, to intercede in the kidnapping of a deceased young girl's body by terrorists. While her parents, who are friends of Harrison Snow, remain at home and worry, the team traces the body to an underground stronghold, only to find that it has undergone a hideous transformation.

Meanwhile: Caroline is celebrating her 12th birthday this weekend. Which seems impossible since she was only born yesterday, it seems.
